Foreword

This book is the second volume of a publishing project that has been created to chronicle events related to the hot phase of Russia's 2014 war against Ukraine. It was then that, taking advantage of the fact that our country's Army and Special Services were almost completely destroyed under Yanukovich's rule and with the new, Maidan-created Government not yet controlling most of the country's processes, Russia conducted a blitzkrieg to seize Crimea. A pseudo-referendum was conducted where the Russian Army — that was based in Sevastopol and used disguised military together with Special Services — was used to actually capture parts of both Luhansk and Donetsk regions, creating gangster enclaves in Ukraine which, through two rounds of Minsk agreements, with the help of Europeans, fixed their status. Eight years later, on February 24, 2022, a new phase of this war began, the totalitarian one, with the use of modern weapons — the largest war in Europe since World War II. A war that won't ever be called a "local conflict" by future historians.

The first month was, sure enough, the most difficult and dangerous period. It was then that the Ukrainian people proved to everyone that the whole country united against the enemy, that the number of collaborators and the fifth column, on which the invaders were counting, was negligible, namely the Russian-speaking East of Ukraine in no case wanted to be part of Russian territory. The Ukrainian Armed Forces, trusted by the Ukrainian people, proved to be a modern army that stopped the “second-largest army of the world”, preventing the capture of neither the capital of Ukraine — Kyiv, nor its early days capital Kharkiv.

It was during the second month of the war that weapon supplies from NATO and other democracies around the world increased. This became possible through the systematic support of Ukraine’s main allies — the United States and Great Britain — and the open diplomacy of the Ukrainian President with his frank, harsh, often undiplomatic speeches before the parliaments of the world that took place during this period. Polish friends, who provided us with their territory for operations to obtain and transport modern military equipment and to coach the Ukrainian military, did not pay attention to the constant threats of Russia, including with nuclear weapons.

It was in the second month of the war that the north of Ukraine was liberated from Russian invaders. The joy of victory was overshadowed by the fact that numerous facts of enemy crimes against civilians were revealed in the liberated territories. Almost two thousand bodies of killed Ukrainian citizens were found in the Bucha — Vorzel — Irpin — Hostomel agglomeration. The rape, torture, and execution of civilians, documented by Ukrainian law enforcement agencies as well as by journalists, have confirmed to the world the brutal way in which the Russians are waging war. The road from Stoyanka to Borodyanka witnessed the destruction of settlements by shelling, and convoys of cars with refugees, as well as the shooting of advancing Russian troops.

A separate page in the history of the war is the feat of Mariupol — soldiers of the 36th Brigade and the Azov Regiment, who did not leave the city and continued to resist, being surrounded by devastating bomb shelling by the enemy with all possible calibers and weapons. The destruction of a peaceful city and its population, the blockade of humanitarian columns, the forcible “filtering” of civilians, their bullying, their deportation to Russia, and the separation of families are just some horrors the Russian military machine “offered” to Ukrainians.

Ukrainian soldiers who stopped the enemies forced them to lose behind numerous manpower killed and wounded along every meter of advance. As well as the military equipment — not only shattered, but also abandoned during the retreat, which allowed Ukrainian soldiers to replenish scrap metal with Russian tanks and armored vehicles, but also to transfer undamaged equipment to the army. It was during this period that a Ukrainian missile hit Russian warships in the port of Berdyansk, which stopped the transfer of military equipment in the direction of Zaporizhzhia and Mariupol. But, the main success at sea was the destruction near the Zmiiny Island of the flagship of the Russian Black Sea Fleet — the missile cruiser “Moscow” together with its crew — by the Ukrainian-made missiles “Neptune” with help of Turkish “Baryaktar” drones.

It is in these days that Ukrainian diplomacy has achieved another success — a difficult path to Ukraine’s accession to the European Union has begun. The continuation of the policy of tightening sanctions against the aggressor has allowed the adoption of another package of sanctions, which significantly limited not only Russia’s fuel exports, but also the supply of technological equipment, means of communications and much more to Russia, which will lead Russian economy to a significant downturn even this very year.

This war will continue for more than one day. Yet, it is clear that it will end where and when the Ukrainian leadership decides. Ukraine will not cede its own territory not only as of February 24 this year, but also as of 1991, when our independence was gained.

Speech
by President of Ukraine Volodymyr Zelenskyy at a meeting of the European Council

25 March 2022. 01:03

Greetings to all of you, greetings to all our friends, friends of Ukraine!

Greetings to all who support freedom!

Mr. President of the European Council, my friend Charles, I congratulate you and congratulate all of us on your re-election. I think this is very important and this is right.

I am grateful for the opportunity to address you and the nations of Europe.

Today it's already been a month since the Russian invasion. After 8 years of aggression in Donbas. The month of the great war.

In short, about its chronicle. Because everything is in my head and everything is fragments. Unfortunately, tragic ones.

It all started on February 24. From Russia. When the missiles flew. Early in the morning. Against our peaceful cities. People have still been sleeping. Death has already come.

Russia sent armored vehicles against us. Brought several thousand tanks to Ukraine.

It's hard to count how many of them have already been burned. How many can still kill us.

Bombs fell on our people. From planes that took off from Belarus. And they didn't even admit that they did it.

Russia captured the Chornobyl NPP. Staff have not been released for 24 days there. Imagine, people lived 24 days at such a facility, worked at such a facility. These are our people.

So that nothing terrible happens in Chornobyl again. To prevent the catastrophe.

And the Russian military held them hostage.

Russian tanks fired at the Zaporizhzhia nuclear power plant.

Russia fired missiles at Babyn Yar.

It has already destroyed more than 230 schools and 155 kindergartens. Killed 128 children. Fired missiles at universities. Burns residential neighborhoods with rocket artillery.

Whole cities, villages. Just to ashes. Nothing remains. The Russian military killed journalists. Although they saw the inscription “Press” on them. They may not have been taught to read. Only to kill.

Russia has blocked Mariupol. This is a blockade that no one could have imagined in our time. Hundreds of thousands of people without water, without food. Under constant shelling, under constant bombing.

The Russian militaries deliberately blow up hospitals, maternity hospitals, shelters. They even blow up shelters, imagine! Knowing for sure that people are hiding there.

They killed 96-year-old Borys Romanchenko in Kharkiv. A Russian projectile flew into his apartment. Into the apartment of a man who survived the Nazi concentration camps, but could not survive Russia that went to our Ukrainian Kharkiv. Thank God, our military stopped Russia there.

Russian troops are using phosphorus bombs — it was this morning. Rape women. Loot houses. Destroy churches! All churches. Even those of the Moscow Patriarchate.

Abducted more than 2,000 children from Ukraine. We don't know where our children are, where our 2,000 children are. Fire at humanitarian convoys. They don't care who's there.
